INFO: I've almost given up on this because I can't find a solution. I've tried remaking the partition, creating partitions and then copying the files with no success. I've even tried making a second installation and copying the files over from the first one. Same problems happen both ways. A: Based on your description, as well as the error message, I'd say the problem is with your video drivers. Try to install the latest drivers for your card. If that doesn't work, try to install the latest driver from AMD and see if that works better. As for the file, it doesn't seem to be much of an issue, as it should be present. The problem could be that when you made the installer partition with CPYFS, your GRUB was left with the partition on which it was located.

Therefore, GRUB was unable to mount your MBR as well, and thus the file didn't make it onto the new installer partition.
