The app comes with intuitive features and provides functions for both rookies and tech savvy users alike. Enables you to fix common issues with just 1 click The program comes with an intuitive interface that highlights some of its most important functions. Simply put, the main window introduces you to 1-Click Maintenance where you can address some of the most common issues you are likely to have with your system. Therefore, the app can repair registry entries, shortcuts, removes spyware, programs that are no longer installed but appear in the startup and removes temporary files that take up disk space. The feature can be customized to include more or less of the issues that you think need regular checkups on your PC. To customize, simply access the small Options link from the 1-Click Maintenance tab. have the possibility to take a deeper look at the OS and correct the problems you want. In the lower section of the GUI, you can access numerous functions, including registry repair, software updates, disk cleanup or the context menu manager, just to name a few.

Generally speaking, the issues found are fixed quite quickly and you can even perform an additional scan to make sure that everything is addressed properly. As with other similar tools in this niche, it is advisable to backup your data or create a system restore point in case of registry fixing, to avoid any real issues. Lends a hand with improving privacy Lastly, it is worth mentioning that the app comes in handy when it comes erasing privacy tracks from your browsers. Instead of clearing the cookies, cache and history of each individual browser installed on your system, Glary Utilities deletes them all at once. Not only does it take a closer look at the browsers, but also accounts for plugins, Recycle Bin, Start Menu searches, Network places and the temporary folders where sensitive information might be stored. One common theme is that even though the government may have changed its rhetoric, when it comes to the "safety net," we can only expect that it will continue to cut. Now, I have no problem with the government cutting or cutting back. It is in the national interest to

No. 88-2676. District Court of Appeal of Florida, First District. July 31, 1989. Douglas A. Massey, of McIntosh & Massey, P.A., Orlando, for appellant. Arthur J. England of Moyle, Flanigan, Katz, Gilman, Lancaster & Rigdon, P.A., Winter Park, for appellee. ZEHMER, Judge. In this appeal from a final judgment entered pursuant to a jury verdict in a workers' compensation case, the appellant argues that the trial court erred in granting a motion for directed verdict on the ground that the appellant was not the statutory employer of the claimant and in failing to submit the issue of appellant's alleged agency relationship to the jury. We agree and reverse. The claimant was injured while working for the appellant. The appellant was the "contractor" that was engaged by the client for the particular job. The appellant was not a general contractor or a subcontractor. Instead, the appellant was the plaintiff's employer within the meaning of section 440.10(1), Florida Statutes (1987). The appellant was engaged by the client to furnish and pay for the equipment and was responsible for the general operation of the construction site. The appellant was under contract with the client to construct a sewer and waterline. The appellant furnished the materials, hired all the laborers, and was responsible for the safety of all of the laborers working on the job. The client, however, was required to reimburse the appellant for all of the materials furnished and for all of the salaries and wages paid to the laborers. The claimant was one of the laborers employed by the appellant to do the rough carpentry work on the sewer line. The claimant was working on the sewer line when he was injured. In order to impose liability upon the appellant for compensation benefits, the claimant was required to prove that the appellant was the *442 statutory employer of the claimant. Section 440.10(1), Florida Statutes (1987). The claimant was
