(I explained this in the previous article about the subject). Right-wing activists have expanded their push to start petitioning states to ban kneeling during the national anthem, as an attorney for a college football player who knelt during the anthem last year said her client is now being subjected to "humiliating" treatment at his school because of the protests. O'Reilly was there following the appointment of an acting director for the Board of Elections, a process in which the local elections commission has named Scott Bennett, a former aide to a prominent local Democrat, to lead the department. The Department of Justice has released the second installment of Special Counsel Robert Mueller's report that deals with the question of whether President Donald Trump obstructed justice.
