Inspired by the game: "Demon's Souls". To experience an unforgiving Dark Souls type game with a light hearted atmosphere, accompanied with all the survival you can handle. You'll face an endless number of undead creatures that will try to hunt you down, using traps, cameras, and even scent. There are plenty of locations to explore from abandoned campsites, to cabins and even cave systems. The forest is full of many different obstacles, such as flooded areas, and abandoned watchtowers. This game is all about hunting your prey, luring them into the traps, learning the forest and it's creatures so you can destroy them once and for all. Now it's time to hunt. It also didn't save the best score you could ever get on a level. But I would give it a 9/10 because it's a fairly well done 2D puzzle game. It has different difficulties and you can opt to play a level a single time or multiple times. It also has an offline level editor, a fun little tool. SteelFeather , 04/13/2017 Draw me a Line! Laser Burst has great potential, but it's lack of use is what ruined it for me. Essentially, all you do is rotate the mirrors in order to create a laser and hit the balloons. Sounds simple enough, but it's not. You must keep track of a certain line of lasers in order to keep you from being trapped. As well, you must use caution when changing mirrors, because you'll lose some of your current lasers and gain a new one. This all adds up to add up to some pretty stressful gameplay. I had to restart the game several times in order to get the timing right. When I finally figured out the timing, I was able to beat every level. The only thing that would have made it more enjoyable would have been if there was a way to save the timing you figured out. I can play the same level multiple times, but it would really be nice to save the timing for later. The title may be misleading in its description. Yes, there are levels, balloons and lasers. But there's no puzzle aspect to it. There's no challenge as far as I can tell. This is mostly due to the lack of a pause feature. Once you get used to the controls, you just move lasers into position by rotating the mirrors and pulling them back. I c9d1549cdd
