Structure of membrane receptors containing kainic acid: a model for the mechanism of action of excitatory amino acids. The structural determinants of anion receptors of Aplysia that mediate the excitatory action of the neurotransmitter L-glutamate (glutamic acid) are examined. The ligand binding site of these receptor proteins is characterized by a large contiguous positively charged surface. This surface is flanked by a 2-fold axis that crosses the receptor protein at the transmembrane region. This kainic acid (KA)-like receptor has an open topology, like receptors of bacterial cells. We propose that the physiological effect of the excitatory amino acid results from membrane perturbation by a process that involves incorporation of L-glutamate into the receptor.

1 - Research Guide Slide 1 The Necromancer's Playbook
Slide 2 Researching the Necromancer's Playbook The Necromancer has a number of class-specific playbooks, including one of the most powerful playbooks in the game. Despite not being the first class to wield Shrink Ray or Mystic Drain, the Necromancer's mage-y abilities have been at the very top of the tier ever since. Using the Necromancer's unique playbooks, you can play any Mage support role: Templar Pyromancer Shadow Conjurer Brute Shaman

Slide 3 Planning a Necromancer Build The Necromancer has two unique abilities that, if added together, act as a magic attack. Shrink Ray: A line of small circles appears where the Necromancer hits an enemy. The first three of these circles deal damage, while the fourth circle can be reattached to an adjacent enemy to reposition the Necromancer. The bonus damage of the cooldown for the Necromancer's shrink ray is increased as the Necromancer's Shrink Ray stacks. Each incremental stack increases the damage by 1, and the ability takes 3 seconds to fully activate. If the Necromancer is hit by magic or a physical attack that breaks line of sight, stacks of Shrink Ray are lost, and the Necromancer deals no damage until they are reapplied. On hit: Deals physical damage and creates a line of small circles where it connects to the target. Guardian: The Necromancer applies a bubble that grants 14% increased damage to allies who attack the damaged target within 15 yards. The bubble does not work against self-attacks. The Necromancer cannot cast while guarding. This ability triggers an attack animation, which has a chance to trigger Necromancer's spell immunity. If this happens, all damage is blocked. After Necromancer's spell immunity disappears, that 15-yard bubble will protect allies from the Necromancer's next spell. The Necromancer cannot summon a mage ally while guarding. On hit: Summons a totem that unleashes an area-of-effect knockback attack on the target. The knockback deals 10%, 12%, 14%, or 16% of the target's total Physical Damage as Magic Damage. The knockback lasts 2.6 seconds, and its
