As detailed in the developer diary below, this also includes physics-based animations, tackles, catching, and even ball collisions. So, if you've been following this blog for a while, you know we've been interested in these types of gameplay mechanics in FIFA.

We're excited to see how this is incorporated into the game. In addition to the all new real-life animation data, this year we also want to share with you the depth of the licenses that we have with some of the biggest names in the business, allowing us to bring some of the most popular teams to the game. These licenses are a huge part of why this year's edition of FIFA is the most ambitious yet, and they will be used to bring the FIFA World Cup experience to life. Before we jump into details, I'd like to share the roadmap for the next few months on this blog. So let's get to it.

Saturday, January 27, 2011 With the offseason winding down and training camp about to get underway, everyone's focus is on the upcoming NBA season. For WG, the focus is predominantly on the Bulls, who missed the playoffs last season for the first time since 2007. The Bulls have added a couple of big pieces, C Greg Oden (center) and F Luol Deng (shooting guard), and WG can't wait to see how the Bulls will fare in a watered-down West. He has pre-season predictions for them, which you can read below. Frontcourt-Tarheel Before the Cavs and Bulls face off in a couple of weeks, the Central Division face-off will be between the Cleveland Cavaliers and the Chicago Bulls.

While the Bulls are bringing back a lot of their core to compete with the Cavaliers, the Bulls have added some big pieces to add to their squad. However, the Cavs have taken a big step forward adding big man, C Greg Oden. While Oden may not be playing as much as he did in college, he has the ability to dominate along the baseline.

Bulls-35-31 The Bulls have added Luol Deng, who brings a lot to their backcourt.

While Chicago's backcourt has always been a strength, Deng adds a lot of perimeter shooting from the shooting guard position. While this may seem obvious to many, the Bulls don't really have anyone who can guard him on the perimeter

What is this?

A: You can add a custom field to your wp_query object. When using the WordPress' main query you can do so like so: $args_query = array( 'post_type' => 'post', 'posts_per_page' => 50, 'orderby' => 'post_date', 'meta_key' => 'ft_video', //You can change this to whatever you need. 'orderby' =>'meta_value', 'meta_query' => array( array( 'key' => 'ft_video', //Change this to be your own custom field key 'value' => '1245' //Change this to be the key and value you want to use ) ) ); $q = new WP_Query( $args_query ); The advantage of this is that it can be automated. So you wouldn't need to keep manually adding a custom field on every single query (which it sounds like you are doing). You would then just need to get get the value you want to be different for every loop
