Gennady Kolker Gennady Aleksandrovich Kolker (; born 27 May 1943) is a Russian documentary filmmaker. The grandson of Sergey Vasilyevich Kolker, a composer and conductor, Gennady Kolker is best known for the documentaries For a Clean Wind (1991), The Herdsman and the Poplar Tree (2004), and Komsomolsk-on-Amur (2010). He is the recipient of several international awards, including the Prize of the Moscow Festival of Documentary and Animated Films for For a Clean Wind, the Golden Leopard from the Locarno Festival for The Herdsman and the Poplar Tree, and a Précieux Carré d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival for Komsomolsk-on-Amur. Born in Moscow, Kolker graduated from the Moscow Institute of Cinema, Photographers, and Graphic Arts in 1967. He began his film career in 1973 as a cinematographer for Aleksandr Ptushko's documentary projects, then worked as an editor on the series of documentaries about the history of the Soviet Army and Soviet films produced by the Goskino State Film Company. In 1977, he joined the newly created Soviet Center for Cinematography (Goskinochny Obrazovaniye Kinoizdaniya [GOKI]). In 1984 he was a member of the jury at the 13th Moscow International Film Festival. In 1979 Kolker began to work as a documentary director, creating the television series Stalviz, with collaborators including such Soviet film directors as Vsevolod Pudovkin, Alexander Dovzhenko and Boris Shumyatsky. In 1984 he produced The Herdsman and the Poplar Tree, which won the c6a93da74d
